Hard to believe- Story of the Speeding Model T

Hi All—I recently came across this amusing Model T story and thought you'd enjoy reading about this incident. Who says driving a Model T isn't exciting, just don't do it this way! This article ran in a recent edition of “Car and Driver”.

Driving under the influence is always a terrible idea, but driving a Ford Model T under the influence of narcotics seems like a particularly difficult endeavor. Thankfully, we don't have to test it out ourselves, as according to authorities, one Australian man has recently taken it upon himself to experiment with drugs and drive a century-year-old car.

At least, that's what Castle Hill Police officers in New South Wales, Australia allege in a recent Facebook post, which was brought to broader attention by CarExpert. The social media post — complete with AI-generated dramatic reenactment image — claims that, on May 17, the 24-year-old suspect was observed accelerating aggressively in a hot-rodded 1923 Ford Model T on Old Northern Road in Castle Hill. The driver was pulled over for allegedly driving 83 kph (51 mph) in a 60 kph (37 mph) zone.

Police say he was then subjected to a breathalyzer test, which he initially passed; however, a roadside drug test indicated the presence of marijuana and cocaine. A second, later oral fluid sample confirmed the presence of methamphetamine in the driver's system as well, according to police.

This content is imported from Facebook. You may be able to find the same content in another format, or you may be able to find more information, at their web site.

Speeding and intoxication weren't the driver's only alleged crimes, either. Castle Hills Police claim the modified Model T was not roadworthy, as it lacked brake lights and turn signals. Additionally, the hot-rod nature of the century-old beast meant it was reportedly "modified beyond factory specifications."

The end result for this young driver was a 24-hour prohibition, and a defect notice indicating necessary changes for the vehicle. Local law enforcement says the driver is due for a court appearance on August 14 at Parramatta Local Court.

"Stay safe and never drive under the influence. Your decisions behind the wheel matter," Castle Hill Police wrote about the incident.

Of course, we full-heartedly agree with their safety-forward sentiment, but it's worth noting we're ever-so-slightly impressed, too. Driving a Model T is far from a typical, 21st-century experience behind the wheel — and we're not sure if attempting it on a cocktail of drugs would make it harder or easier. Either way, we're glad law enforcement officers were able to step in before anyone, apparently, was hurt.

Here is a test. What kind of vehicle is pictured here? The answer is the one and only EV Cyber Truck. I'm showing it because I just read an article that this distinctive vehicle is now being described as a flop. DARN! I like the look and I started saving to get one. I figure I'd have the money in 20 years or so. Looks like my dreams have been dashed. Boooooo!

NEXT MEETING SCHEDULED FOR JULY 23, 2025 AT 6:30 pm.
